

Need certification services?

Look out for the SAC accreditation mark

Your assurance for Quality & Peace of Mind

“Accreditation plays a vital role in ensuring quality and reliability of certificates for sound decision making. SAC provides the assurance that bodies providing certification services meet the international standards and have the competency to provide such services.”

~ Mr Renny Yeo, SAC Chairman

The Singapore Accreditation Council (SAC) is the national accreditation body in Singapore. It is managed by SPRING Singapore, a statutory board under the Ministry of Trade and Industry.

SAC accredited certificates are widely recognised by regulators and industry. SAC is a signatory to various regional and international mutual recognition arrangements (MRAs). This means that SAC accredited certificates are accepted by many of Singapore’s trading partners in the Asia Pacific region as well as globally.

You can have greater confidence when you use the services of certification bodies that have been accredited by the SAC. These certification bodies have been thoroughly assessed by SAC to meet internationally recognised standards for their competence. They are also periodically monitored to ensure that they continue to comply with standards.

A company which has been certified by an accredited certification body will be issued a certificate which will bear both the SAC and the respective certification body’s marks. This shows that the company has implemented a system that meets international/national standards to provide reliable products and services.

Not all certification bodies are SAC accredited and accreditation may only be for specific services rendered by the certification bodies. So always ask for the SAC accredited certificate and look for the SAC accreditation mark on the certificate. The accreditation status of certification bodies and their scope of accreditation are available at SAC’s website, www.sac-accreditation.gov.sg.

Congratulations for choosing a SAC accredited certification body! You have the assurance of reliable and well accepted certification services.

Need testing & inspection services?

Look out for the SAC accreditation marks

Your assurance for Quality & Peace of Mind

"Accreditation plays a vital role in ensuring quality and reliability of test data and inspection results for sound decision making. SAC provides the assurance that bodies providing testing, measurement and inspection services meet the international standards and have the capability to provide such services."

~ Mr Renny Yeo, SAC Chairman

The Singapore Accreditation Council (SAC) is the national accreditation body in Singapore. It is managed by SPRING Singapore, a statutory board under the Ministry of Trade and Industry.

SAC endorsed reports are widely recognised by regulators and industry. SAC is a signatory to various regional and international mutual recognition arrangements (MRAs). This means that SAC endorsed reports are accepted by many of Singapore's trading partners in the Asia Pacific region as well as globally.

You can have greater confidence when you use the testing, measurement or inspection services of companies that have been accredited by the SAC. These companies have met internationally recognized standards for technical competence and produce reliable test data and inspection reports. They are also periodically monitored to ensure that they continue to comply with standards.

Not all laboratories and inspection bodies are SAC accredited and accreditation may only be for specific services rendered by the companies. So always ask for the SAC endorsed reports and look for the SAC accreditation mark on the reports. The accreditation status of companies and their scope of accreditation are available at SAC's website at www.sac-accreditation.gov.sg.

Congratulations for choosing a SAC accredited company! You have the assurance of reliable and well accepted testing, measurement and inspection services.